A MISSISSIPPI HIGHWAY

A project started by Iowans living in cities along the state's eastern border is of interest to the whole Mississippi region and even to the rest of the country. It is the development of a scenic highway to follow the Father of Waters along its entire length and to be known as the Mississippi River Highway. The route would pass through Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, Iowa and Minnesota, following the west shore as far as Minneapolis and St. Paul. There it would cross over and, after leaving the beginning of the river behind, would continue through Duluth into Canada to Port Arthur, on the northern shore of Lake Superior. Along its course, the highway would pass through many wonderfully beautiful scenic regions. In other stretches, where nature may not have been so generous, the communities touched would doubtless beautify the highway with interesting and suitable planting.

This does not mean all new construction, by any means. There are numerous fine river roads already in existence which, with planning, co-operation and a little improvement, may become part of the ultimate highway. When the chain is completed it will be not only one more important traffic artery, but also one more inducement to domestic travel. Motorists from regions far east and west of the Mississippi Valley will go there for pleasure jaunts. The route will provide one more means of getting citizens from different parts of the country better acquainted with each other.

A POSTAL ANNIVERSARY.

Postal service in this country is a year older than the nation itself. The first postal service was inaugurated in the colonies on July 25, 1775, with Benjamin Franklin as first postmaster-general. Postoffices in many parts of the country observed the anniversary by keeping open house, putting flags in the laps of postal workers and decorating mail trucks. From a few post riders to 350,000 postal employees, and from an annual business of $7,510 to one of $700,000,000, the service has grown as the nation grew. Now the air mail carries letters in a single day distances which would have required months or years of time to cover in the 18th century.

The special observance this year was really a part of the Washington bicentennial celebration which began in February and is to continue throughout the year. The postal service, like many other services we take for granted today, owes much to the men who made the country's early history. The Washington bicentennial is bringing many overlooked historical events to public attention and is making us more aware of our nation's beginnings than we have been since our school days.

FOOLISH FIGHTING

If men want to fight, they will probably fight, in any race or climate. But the Bolivians and Paraguayans surely show unusually poor judgment over what they are fighting about now. El Gran Chaco is a desolate frontier where there is scarcely any population, trade or real estate value, and where there could hardly be a natural economic or racial clash for generations if each nation minded its own business.

It looks like another case of what Walt Whitman called "the dementia of exalted things." The cowboys and sports at the front and the people back home are all steamed up over a senseless boundary quarrel when they could be a great deal happier and better off if they forgot all about the boundary and hired a competent commission and let it do the worrying. To be sure, we have had our own boundary fights, as a nation, as states, and many of us as individuals. But nations and individuals alike are supposed to be getting more rational about such things, and letting surveys settle such questions instead of deciding them with bullets or bats.

CHICAGO AS CROSSROADS.

"If Chicago doesn't become the second seaport of the United States, it will be her own fault," says Charles P. Cratz of Duluth, head of the St. Lawrence Tidewater Association. "By providing adequate docking facilities Chicago can win tremendous benefits from the St. Lawrence agreement."

There still seem to be business men in Chicago, however, who do not realize their city's opportunity. Two waterways, presumably, are better than one, when the city constitutes a terminus for each. Chicago may be destined to become a transshipping center as Buffalo has always been for Great Lakes traffic and the Erie Canal, and as Cleveland used to be for the Ohio Canal, only on a far bigger scale. Chicago is already a great railroad center. She owes her size and wealth largely to that fact. If any city can become, and remain, the crossroads both for great land routes and great water routes her destiny is assured.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

DON'T REDUCE NORMAL WEIGHT.

If you are of normal weight, yet have a longing to get a "trim" figure, it might be well to think for a moment about what the normal amount of fat on and in your body means to your health.

Fat tissue is found scattered throughout the entire body. Immediately beneath the skin it forms a layer of varying thickness, not only rounding out the figure but acting as a protector to hold in the heat of the body and not allowing it to get out of the body too readily. Heat is life to the body and the body must therefore be kept warm, even hot inside, if all the processes are to do their work well.

If the body heat is lost too readily the white corpuscles—the disease fighters of the body—do not do their work as well; the circulation of the blood becomes slower; everything in fact slows down. Thus this layer of fat is of great service to all the body processes.

Then a considerable amount of fat is necessary to support the abdominal organs all of which are attached to the back bone and "hang" out in the abdomen. Supporting hard tissues lined with fat holds these organs up in their proper places in the abdomen.

The individual who has reduced his weight too rapidly frequently has a great deal of abdominal distress—pain in back and in abdomen. Due to this loss of fat the abdominal organs—kidneys, stomach and intestines—actually "drop" a number of inches from their normal positions.

Fat is found practically everywhere filling in chinks in the body—in between the muscles, about tendons, joints and so forth.

In other words then every one of us needs a certain amount of fat covering the surface of the body, and in and about the various organs and tissues; so that if you are of normal weight, don't take chances on your health by trying to reduce your weight.

An overweight individual can reduce safely because his fat on the surface is too thick; it is holding heat in the body too well, and that fat elsewhere in the body may be interfering with the proper working of organs and tissues.

Be thankful then that you are of normal weight, that you can enjoy all kinds of food; do not have to cut down in amount, or on particular foods; do not have to take strenuous exercise or Turkish baths.

Don't try to attain a "slim" figure. It is not safe.

The Faithful Cheat

BY RUBY M. AYRES

SYNOPSIS: When her brother-in-law, Ben Lomax, tells her to leave his home, because her mother, Flora, has run away from him, Sandra Lomax is forced to seek refuge in a hotel. But her brother-in-law, Ben, is not so easily fooled.

Chapter 29

LOOKING FOR A REFUGE

BEATRICE knew everything of course—knew that Flora was not coming back, knew that Sandra herself had no home and no money. Well, Beatrice wasn't her only friend—there were other people who had always been only too glad to have her with them—she could ring up at least half a dozen and suggest sheltering herself upon them for a week or two.

But the Macceys were going out of town—the Longdons had the young son of the family home from school with a broken leg—the Leighs were full of "relations from the country—so deadly dull, Sandra—and at last in despair she gave up the attempt to find a refuge.

She had never dreamed that she would be in such a desperate plight, and her courage almost failed.

Useless to remember her father's cheery optimism.

"Never despair!" he was fond of saying. "When one door shuts, another always opens." He had always insisted upon the truth of this, even to his dying day, and after every available door had been slammed in his optimistic countenance.

"If only I'd been free—" Sandra thought wildly, and then was ashamed. It was her own fault that she and Mark had been married—she had allowed herself to be carried away by the fact that he was leaving her.

She could always go to him, of course—he wanted her even though nobody else on earth seemed to care; the trouble was that she did not want him.

"It was a mistake—a dreadful mistake," she told herself in an agony of mind. "Why was I such a fool?"

Ben's money was all that stood between her and life; how long could she make it last?

Sandra had never known the value of money—like her father she had always had everything she wanted whether she could pay for it or not, but then there had always been Flora to fall back upon—now there was nobody.

"I suppose I might get a job as a mannequin," she thought dreadingly, but what a job!

She tried to comfort herself with her father's philosophy. Something would turn up—something always turned up when things were at their worst; she would not despair.

For the next two days she made no plans—she went about everywhere, and laughed and skillfully parried the many pertinent questions that were showered upon her, although there was an ever growing fear in her heart, and then as she was going out to dine with some people on the Thursday night Lomax stopped her in the hall.

"I leave early in the morning, so I shall not see you again. Can you give me your new address in case I want to get in touch with you?"

"My new address?" Sandra stammered—so this was indeed the end, that had come upon a high wall that shut out the future; no miracle was going to happen, she was at last thrown entirely on her own resources.

In desperation she gave the address of a friend—"I shall be there for the next week or two."

Lomax made a careful note of it, and then turned away without even a handshake.

Sandra followed him to ask one last question.

"Flora? Have you heard from her?"

"No—" for a moment a look of great pain crossed his face, rather ugly face, but it was quickly gone. "She has made her bed, and she can lie on it," he said, brutally.

Sandra laughed.

"Well, it's something to have made it," she said flippantly.

It was more than she had done, and she had no idea where she could go when tomorrow came.

When she arrived at the house where she was to dine, the first person she saw was John Anderson. He crossed the room to her at once.

"How are you Sandra?"

She shrugged her shoulders.

"Why do people always ask such a silly question?" she said with nervous irritation. "If I were ill or dying, I suppose you would have heard it—people always hear unpleasant things quickly enough."

"Yes," he agreed, and then after its annual meeting in the church parlors on Saturday afternoon, August 6. The guest of the afternoon will be Mrs. S. Gillian, a missionary in India, who will speak on the work in India. Refreshments will be served, an offering taken and a musical program enjoyed.

Mrs. Gillian was formerly Miss Schoonmaker of Newbury. All the Missionary Societies from Newbury, Gardner, Walden and nearby villages are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Cornelius Rose Post, American Legion, of Walkkill, will have its installation of officers in the Legion rooms on August 10, when the Ulster County Commander, Robert Brown, will do the honors for the local officers. Vice County Commander Charles Ronk, recently elected, will appear in his new office.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bell entertained a number of guests at their home here for a few days. Among the guests present were Miss Dorothy Swenson of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Decker and Isabelle Dickson of Brookville, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Chute and daughter, Lois. Mrs. Jean Niblette and daughter, Jean, of Lyndhurst, N. J., and Mrs. Herman Loagen left home in New York city.

The regular prayer meeting of the Walkkill Reformed Church has been discontinued for the month of August. However, it will be resumed in September.

Mrs. LeRoy Masten and son have returned home after a vacation spent in Endicott, N. Y.

a moment, "I am sorry about your sister."

"There isn't any special need for sorrow," Sandra said. "She has been able to do what she wanted, and that's more than many of us can say."

He looked at her gravely.

"And is it true that Lomax is going away?" he asked.

"Quite true; he sails tomorrow. We had a touching farewell in the hall tonight. The house is to be shut up."

"And you—where are you going?"

She looked up at him with too bright eyes.

"Do you know—" she said mockingly, "I have the kind of feeling that you would like me to say to the devil—but it's nothing so romantic. I am merely going to a hotel until I can make plans."

"Won't that be dull? Surely you must have dozens of friends you could stay with."

"Do you think so?" she was conscious of a sudden tightening in her throat. "Perhaps I would rather be alone."

"You are too young to wander about by yourself."

She laughed. "Did I say I proposed wandering? I'm afraid there is nothing so exciting in store for me."

"Why should you be so interested?"

"Only because I shall probably be out of town for the next few days, and I should like to know where you are to be found."

"How very kind of you."

He ignored the sarcasm.

"Does that mean you have no intention of telling me?" he asked.

"It doesn't mean anything—perhaps I'll write and tell you, only I'm not very good at letter writing—" she added deliberately echoing the words he had spoken to her in the park.

Anderson changed the conversation.

"I had news of young Merriman this morning."

Sandra turned her face away.

"Oh, did you? How is he?"

"Unfortunately he has already gone down with a touch of fever. It seems amazing—he should have got it so soon, a man of his physique."

She looked at him swiftly.

"Fever? Is that anything . . . serious?"

"Oh, no; everyone has it more or less, but he's been out there such a short time."

There was a little silence. "I hope he will be all right," Sandra murmured.

"Sure to be; you need not worry."

"I—worry?" she laughed nervously. "What queer things you say."

He did not speak for a moment, then he said—

"Sandra, may I ask you something . . . rather personal?"

Her heart missed a beat. Was it about Mark?—how much did he know or suspect?

"Ask me anything you like—" she told him carelessly. "But I don't promise to answer, and anyway, why not leave it till later? We are sure to be sent in to dinner together," she added with a touch of sarcasm.

"I am afraid not," Anderson said. "I've just been told that I am to escort Miss Symons—"

"Oh," Sandra's lips felt cold. "Well, in that case—" she said with an effort, "you had better ask me this very personal question now—I shall be leaving soon after dinner."

"It's about your future, Sandra. My future? That sounds terribly dramatic! . . . what possible interest can it be to you?"

"Only the interest of friendship. You must forgive me, but I know that as far as money matters—"

She cut him short with a quick laugh.

"Oh, but that's where you are utterly mistaken. My brother-in-law has been most amazingly generous—so generous in fact that I intend repaying . . . some of my debts."

There was a profound silence, then Anderson said quietly—

"I am glad Lomax has been generous."

He waited a moment, then as another man joined them, he bowed and left her.

It was a miserable evening for Sandra; down the long table she could see Anderson very attentive to Nathalie Symons, and never once glancing her way.

As soon as dinner was over, Sandra tried to escape.

In the midst of attempts to adjust herself to her new life, in the next instant, Sandra got word from Mark.

the Maple Dell and Burgher farms. Many hands made light work and the job was right along without a hitch. "Jim" and "Ed" had a hundred bushels of oats or more and twenty of wheat, and "E. C." about the same quantity of oats but no wheat. "Ed and Joe Winkler, members of the "Triangle Club Thrashing League," plan to harvest and thresh their oat crop this week. Over at Broadhead community several farmers were also engaged on Saturday.

Among week-end visitors of prominence were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Kelder of East Orange, N. J. They were accompanied by Miss Evelyn Lettner, who with her mother, has spent several seasons with Larry's mother, Mrs. Addie Kelder, at West Shokan Heights. Included in the group were two young men from Roselle, N. J. The party took in the dance at Colange's Hall, which added immeasurably to the enjoyment afforded their stay.

Charles Allen, formerly an instructor on the staff of Cornell University, but now a prominent farmer on the Marletown flats, is serving hotels and summer resorts as far north as Margaretville with home grown produce. Mr. Allen makes three regular trips weekly and is enjoying a very successful season. On his first Saturday he disposed of about four thousand ears of delicious sweet corn.

The community's stellar week-end social attraction was the weekly dance held Saturday night at Colange Hall. The crowd was by far the largest of the season, everyone bent upon having a good time and no one went home disappointed. It was, however, just a bit late before things got to booming and the Royal Delawares obliged by playing till 3 a. m. Frank Constable, the congenial leader, promised to come next Saturday night prepared for an all-night's stay if necessary, which means another lively time in store at little old West Shokan, the playground of the Esopus Valley.

On Friday a party of city guests from Tuckaway Farm, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pelham, Miss Antonette Vallat and the Misses Violet and Vienne Eldstein, under the leadership of Miss Maris Miller of Broadhead hiked to the summit of High Point. The day was ideal, and although the hikers found no huckleberries, they were well satisfied with the trip.

Edwin Gillen of New York city spent the week-end with his family at "Sunnyside Cottage."

Elwyn Davis is cutting the hay on the five acre lot belonging to the Misses Kate and Mary Ann Dwyer. Last year this lot was cleared by a group of the local farmers who banded together in a real old-fashioned haying bee and put in the hay while "Uncle Mike" Dwyer was in the Benedictine Hospital.

A party of friends and relatives, consisting of George Hartman, Mrs. Etienne Hahn, Miss Mary Nagy and Lloyd Randall of New York city spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hartman at the Smith home on Main street.

Howard Lucht and Miss Lydia Yoell of "The Green Hen," were callers at West Shokan Heights on Sunday afternoon.

Among the attendants at the Sunday afternoon church service, were our former West Shokan residents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Bell and daughter, Chloe, of Shokan. . . . It was learned with regret through Mrs. Bell that Mrs. Edward Mins of Walden, is dead after a long illness. Mrs. Mins was the wife of the first pastor here after the Baptist Church was re-located. She was a native of Sullivan county from whence the couple came early in 1916, accompanied by their six weeks old daughter, Ida, now a young lady.

Orville Barker of Main street was a member of a local party who visited Peekamoose on Sunday. Mr. Barker reports that the streams are very low over the mountain.

The following metropolitan guests who have been spending a very enjoyable two weeks' vacation at Tuckaway Farm, returned to their homes on Sunday, namely, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pelham, Violet and Vienne Eldstein and Miss Antonette Vallat and mother. Mrs. Whittle is enjoying a very successful season which is her first at "Tuckaway" for merely the McRoberts property.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Eckert of Tilson were among the guests entertained at the West Shokan Inn of Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Eckert, a girl, resided in the old village of West Shokan.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Terwilliger of Tilson visited this locality on Sunday. Mr. Terwilliger was likewise formerly a resident of the old West Shokan.

Plenty of Food for Soldiers at Pine Camp

Battery A, 156th Field Artillery
New York National Guard
Pine Camp, New York
July 30th, 1932.
Kingston Daily Freeman.
Kingston, N. Y.
Att: City Editor.

Dear Sir:

Just a few words to let the people of Kingston know that Battery "A" is still up in Pine Camp. The following figures will show the people of Kingston just how much these boys up here eat. These are a few of the items used by this Regiment in the last six days: 6,450 eggs, 4,200 lbs. potatoes, 4,320 lemons, 3,360 loaves bread, 1,500 lbs. sugar, 1,365 lbs. beef, 540 lbs. bacon, 500 lbs. ham (smoked), 609 lbs. pork, 600 lbs. butter, 500 grape fruit, 360 cans spinach, 500 cans peaches, 600 lbs. fish. These are only a few of the items, so you can readily see that the boys are not starving to death by any means. The battery has fired twice since we have been up here and we expect to fire two or three times next week. Today (Sunday) the boys had a chicken dinner with all the fixings and all enjoyed the repast. Some of the boys went out yesterday with Sergeant John Burns to pick huckleberries and returned with about twenty quarts, so we are going to have some huckleberry pie this week. One of the former members of this outfit paid us a visit over the week-end. Kenneth Van Ertan motored up from Kingston to see how the boys were getting along up here. He was accompanied by John Long, also a Kingston boy. Harry Giles, our able First Sergeant, left this morning with Captain Preston to go to the Thousand Islands fishing. He promised to bring back some fish so it will be just too bad if he turns up here without any. I forgot to mention it in my last letter but I meant to tell you that we had a stowaway on the train when we came up here last week. It seems that when we arrived in Pine Camp and they opened the baggage car there was a stowaway. He is a former member of this organization and he just couldn't let the boys come to camp without him so he just hoped aboard when we left Kingston. Captain Preston put him to work in the kitchen, so now everyone is satisfied. The stowaway is in camp and Captain Preston has a good K.P. Well I'll write again later in the week and let you know the latest news up here.

Very truly yours,
LARRY J. BLAKE,
Battery Clerk.

POUGHKEEPSIE PHYSICIAN
PLACED ON PROBATION.

Dr. John F. Malone, Poughkeepsie physician, was placed on probation for one year when he entered a plea of guilty to assault, third degree, in city court at Poughkeepsie Monday. He was warned to leave town alone and that further trouble would result in a jail sentence. He was accused by Miss Olive Carol Irwin with having attempted to cut her with a silver table knife following a quarrel over a card game. The doctor, his wife and Miss Irwin had been playing cards and the doctor left the house and returning later found his wife and Miss Irwin sleeping. He ordered them to get up and when they refused Miss Irwin charged he attacked them with the knife. She was slightly cut but Mrs. Malone escaped injury. Miss Irwin swore out a complaint, charging assault, second degree, and on being arraigned a plea of third degree assault was accepted by the court.

United States Has Millions at Stake

Washington, Aug. 2 (AP).—The American government today looked for something that would at least bring a truce in arguments between Bolivia and Paraguay where United States interests have millions at stake.

Just what could be done was problematical, especially in view of the decisions of the Paraguayan congress last night to order a general mobilization of its armed forces.

Further difficulties between the two countries would be reflected in their trade with the United States. In 1931, Bolivia used $1,772,172 worth of American goods while sending imports worth only $42,975 to this country. Paraguay's exports to the United States last year were $1,000,000 and her imports $592,493.

Then came the Bolivian securities, which included a 1927 loan of $14,000,000 and one in 1928 for $23,000,000. Bolivia already had defaulted on a number of her foreign loans.

There are 214 Americans in Bolivia and 71 in Paraguay.

KINGSTON PUBLIC MARKET ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED

At a meeting of patrons of the so-called Market on lower Hasbrouck avenue on Monday night, a Farmers' Public Market Association was formed. Mayor Eugene H. Carey was present during the first part of the meeting. He stated that some serious complaints had been received in regard to the congested condition of lower Hasbrouck avenue during the market hours and the dirty condition in which the sidewalks and entrances to buildings were left.

Mayor Carey further stated that this condition must be remedied and the city is ready to cooperate to designate some suitable location for a market which would be off the city streets.

There was some discussion in regard to the location and the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, the present location of the so-called Downtown Market on Hasbrouck avenue, has become unsatisfactory in that the streets are congested and dangerous for traffic and the facilities and space are very inadequate.

Therefore, be it resolved, that we, the undersigned patrons of the above mentioned market, respectfully request the mayor and common council of the city of Kingston to designate some central and suitable area, to be known as the Kingston Public Market, preferably the area around the old Army building on Broadway."

The matter of organizing a Market Association was then brought up. After a very brief discussion it was unanimously voted to form such an association to be known as the Farmers' Public Market Association. Leslie Herring of Uster Park was elected temporary chairman. The other charter members are: John H. Walker, John F. McCreery, Milton Walker, William Schryver, John Modica, Charles E. Schultz, Melvin Churchwell, Antonio Modica, Salvatore Modica, Frank Van Wagenen.

The car he was riding in to avoid a truck in the road swerved to one side; the driver lost control and the car crashed into a telephone pole.

Scientists May Be "OE" About Crocodile Tears

The phrase "crocodile tears" has been used for so long that it comes as a surprise to learn that according to scientists, these reptiles cannot shed tears at all. According to scientists, the crocodiles possess lacrimal glands, but the secretion never reaches the eye itself. It is believed that its function is to lubricate the animal's food. Some time ago, however, when experiments were carried out to ascertain whether crocodiles shed tears or not, the reptiles refused to oblige even when encouraged by a mixture of onion juice and salt.

The following incident which is offered as proof that crocodiles can cry, is related in London Answers:

"When a boat was steaming up the Indus, a crocodile was shot and brought aboard. As it was lying on deck—believed dead—the onlookers were astonished to see what looked like tears trickling from the reptile's eyes."—Philadelphia Record.

Architectural Gem in Ancient City of India

The stone tower of the very isolated Temple of the Bayon stands in the jungle at the mathematical center of the ruined city of Angkor Thom in Cambodia. The temple was built by King Java Varman VII in the Twelfth century. Though originally planned as a Buddhist temple, it was later altered and devoted to the worship of Shiva the Destroyer and the Giver. Each of the towers carries on each of its four sides, the head of the Bodhisattva Lokeshvara—"He who looks down with compassion." Round the base of the towers are galleries filled with bas-reliefs recording incidents in Cambodian life and history, a most realistic one showing the Khmer people at their daily tasks. Angkor Thom was the residence of the Khmer kings for five and a half centuries. Near it is the Brahmin temple of Angkor Wat, one of the world's greatest architectural curiosities.

Chapels in Oak Tree

An unusual oak tree, containing two chapels within its huge trunk, celebrated its twelve hundredth year of existence at the village of Allouville-Bellefosse, near Rouen in France. Nine men with their axes extended are barely able to encircle the base of the tree. Of course, its exact age is lost in the mists of history, but experts declare it must be approximately 1,200 years old. In the first chapel is a statue of the Virgin presented by the Empress Eugenie during the second French empire. An elegant wooden stairway surrounds the oak and leads to the second chapel which is known as La Chapelle due Calvaire. It is related that the tree was visited by Charles II. of England, and also by Louis XV.

Medieval Scholastics

The group called the schoolmen or scholastics of the Middle Ages attempted to harmonize reason and faith, philosophy and revelation. They accepted what the church taught about God and salvation, but they tried to show that reason and logic, particularly as shown in the work of Aristotle, led to the same conclusions. Some things, like the doctrine of the Trinity, were admittedly beyond human reason, but the scholastics tried to show that they were not contrary to reason. The schoolmen have often been accused of wasting time on futile hair splitting, but their keen development of logical processes and their confidence that the universe was reasonable have been of value for later science.

Egyptian Prayer for Beer

Prayers for the dead shown in a collection of Egyptian tomb sculptures on display at the Field Museum, Chicago, reveal modern aspirations among the Egyptians of 3000 B. C. One prayer for an official of high rank pleads for "bread and beer on every feast day and every day." On the tomb of a lady named Ipi appears the modest petition for "1,000 loaves of bread, 1,000 jars of beer, and 1,000 garments."

Inspection of the tomb of another official identifies him as the "seal bearer of the king and the sole companion of the king." Similar inscriptions on tombs about him point out many other sole companions of the king.

Vermilion Production

Vermilion is the product of an ore known as cinabar, which is a compound of sulphur and mercury. In the manufacture of the pigment, the ore is thrown into earthen pots which are kept red hot in the lower part. The substance volatilizes and coats the sides of the jars with cinabar. The jars are then broken and the material, which is a bright red, is scraped off the sides and ground fine, the powder being the common commercial product.

There are mines producing vermillion in Spain, Brazil, Peru, Austria, Hungary, Japan and China.

Modern Music Superior

It is true we know little about Greek music, but even if we assume that it was highly artistic, it could not have compared with ours. Modern music is virtually a creation of the last three centuries. This is due partly to the development of many new musical instruments, and even more to the explorations of the fields not only of melodies, but of harmonies and combinations of harmonies.

Port of Albany Busy

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP).—Ocean shipping is booming at the inland Port of Albany. Records of the port commission show 59 vessels arrived up to August 1, compared to 11 in the same period last year. The shipping was from foreign countries as well as Atlantic and Pacific coastal ports.

Glasco Man Badly Injured Tuesday

The condition of Gabriel Russo, 21, of Glasco, who was badly injured Monday afternoon when the motor cycle he was riding collided with an automobile driven by Mrs. Marie R. Gilstrap, 214 Broadway, at the entrance to the city hall, was reported as "serious" at the Kingston Hospital where he was taken following the accident.

Russo was badly crushed and it was reported first that he might have been killed. There is a possibility, however, that the leg may be saved.

Mr. Gilstrap, at the time was driving on Broadway in the car with her son, 12, rather, James M. Russo, the well known undertaker. Russo, following her father to the city hall on business and as she attempted to make a left turn into the city hall driveway, Russo was riding over on Broadway on his motor cycle and he attempted to cut ahead of the car and struck the auto on the left fender.

ALL DAIRYMEN TO HAVE CHANCE TO SIGN CHARTER.

At a meeting of the Uster county dairymen, held in the emergency committee plan on Monday night, plans were made to give every independent dairyman an opportunity to sign a proposed charter. Robert W. Kim of Honesdale, Pa., discussed the dairy situation at date.

During the course of the meeting it was reported that Fred Meredith of Wallkill was expelled from the Schenck Farms Co. Creamery at Honesdale for being interfering in organizing. This method of intimidation is continued, but is only emphasizing the need for co-operation and organization for self preservation. As a result more signatures are being received daily.

Committee reports indicated that very little work was done during the past week due to the harvesting of crops. During this week a strenuous effort will be made to complete a large share of the work before the meeting next Monday. Eight producers from the Wallkill section plan to assist canvassers in the Kerhonkson and Kyserville districts during the week, in an effort to call on every producer and give him an opportunity to cast his ballot as to whether he is in favor of organization or not. If 75 per cent of all dairymen vote in favor the plan goes into effect on September 1.

AMERICAN BUSINESS FACES LOSS OF MILLIONS IN TRADE

Paris, Aug. 2 (AP).—American business interests face the loss of millions of dollars worth of trade with France owing to a treaty just signed by France and Belgium.

The pact, signed yesterday becomes effective next Monday and is to last eight months. It waives for Belgium the import tax of 4 per cent on semi finished goods of certain classes and the 6 per cent tax on finished goods. These classifications include copper, lead, zinc, hides, skins, office equipment and many other articles.

Importers of American apples and other fresh fruits also were hard hit. The office of the American commercial attaché was very busy studying the effect of the Franco-Belgian pact today in an effort to estimate the total amount of American trade which would be affected. Officials said the trade in copper alone last year amounted to $11,000,000.

The other three arsenals were turning out munitions at top speed. At the same time enlistments were stopped and it was announced the rebel armed force now stood at a full complement of 60,000 men.

Family Lost All In Morning Fire

While Mrs. Luigi Maritono was working in the garden of her home on Linderman avenue extension at the city line about 11 o'clock this morning she noticed smoke coming from the cellar of her home nearby in a very few minutes the entire house was on fire. The Kingston fire department responded to a call for aid. There were no water facilities but by the use of chemicals the fire men put out a fire on the roof of the house occupied by Burton Beaumont, adjoining the Maritono residence.

The Maritono residence, a two-story frame dwelling, was destroyed with all of its contents. The family were unable to save a thing from the burning house. The Maritono children were with the mother in the garden while the father, who is employed at St. Ann's Convent on Broadway, was at work. The loss is said to be partly covered by insurance.

Dead, Mrs. Eddie Bryant, her two sons, Jesse Bryant, 20, and Willard, 18; Mary Leon, 20, and her two sons, Geneva 5, and Herschel, 2.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR WILLIAM HUSKKA

Washington, Aug. 2 (P).—Escorted by representatives of all Washington veterans' organizations, the body of William Huskka, a former police man shot by police in bonus pay rioting, moved today toward a burial place in the National Arlington Cemetery.

Meanwhile, a coroner's jury was held to fix responsibility for his death. He was shot during last Tuesday's rioting by George Shinn, a policeman, as he advanced suspiciously on the officer. Pelham Glassford, superintendent of police, held the officer's action was justified.

Two thousand persons crowded the street corner about the underground establishment where Huskka's body lay, while funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Francis J. Hurney of the Church of the Immaculate Conception. In the crowd were members of Legion posts and posts of Veterans of Foreign Wars, dressed in colorful uniforms. Within only a few could find room in the small chapel. Among them was Walter Waters, bonus army commander, bare-headed and wearing a khaki shirt.

Four members of the Chicago veteran's family heard the services. They were Mrs. Frank Krivenki, his divorced wife; Loretta, their daughter; Charles Huskka, a brother and Mrs. Antonia Nichols, a cousin.

CAPTAIN LANCASTER ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Miami, Fla., Aug. 2 (P).—Captain W. N. Lancaster, formerly of the British air corps, went on trial in Dade county circuit court today charged with murdering Haden Clarke, a young writer, in a love triangle involving Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, the Australian girl.

Clarke was mysteriously shot April 21 in the bedroom he and Lancaster occupied in her home here. James M. Carson, chief of the defense counsel, moved in vain for a continuance of the trial until September 15 due to the illness of Dr. P. L. Dodge, a specialist who was to be one of the chief witnesses.

Carson said Dr. Dodge, head of a commission that conducted an autopsy over Clarke's exposed body several weeks after death, was convinced that the youth was a narcoleptic and committed suicide.

Lancaster and his attorneys and Mrs. Keith-Miller appeared in the court room early and posed for photographers.

Both appeared nervous but expressed belief he would be acquitted.

YOUR HOME and YOU By BETSY CALLISTER

TANNED SKINS

ONE of the first concerns of the old-fashioned girl after the days of her summer vacation were over was to contrive somehow to remove the sunburned tones of her skin. She used dozens of lemons to whiten her neck and face, tried a variety of so-called skin whiteners, and kept herself as much out of the sunshine as possible.

Not so the girl of today. It is with pride and happiness that our friends who have had their vacation show us their sunburned arms and faces, and usually they assure you that now that they have acquired their fashionable sun-tanned complexion they are not going to permit it to fade.

Girls in city offices take time from their lunch hours to bask in the mid-day sun on the roofs, or hurry home at the end of the working day intending to take their sun bath before Old Sol has gone too far down in the horizon to be of any use in this way.

Once the girl in the office whose desk happened to be near a window where the sun shone bright on summer days received the sympathy of her associates; now the sunniest spots in the office are the most coveted and it is only the old fogies who insist on having the green shades drawn.

This changed attitude is reflected in the preparations sold for the relief of sunburn. The demand now is for creams or lotions that prevent blistering or irritation without actually removing the bronze tones of the skin.

DIET AND FOOD

AFTER all the advice from various diet experts as to reduction of fat, if we sum it down to the reasonable and normal conclusion, we find that if one is overweight, we need less food and more exercise. Less food does not mean that we should change our mode of living, or give up the foods we like, but eat down on the amount. Leave the table with the feeling that you could eat more, and would really enjoy more; but refrain. Such is good discipline for both the body and the mind. The Chinese, healthy, long-lived and normal in weight, eat one food mostly. The single diet, that is their secret. In Russia cabbage is the main dish. One of the evils of our modern civilized life is the complexity and mixtures that we make of food.

Look at the large families of healthy children if there are any large families in your neighborhood; note their diet. One family of nine, with seven healthy, rugged, bright-minded children would have for a noon meal such a one as this: When green peas were plentiful, they made a meal of cooked peas with bread and butter. When strawberries were in season strawberry shortcake would be the whole meal for the nine. All had all they wanted and everybody was satisfied and needed nothing more.

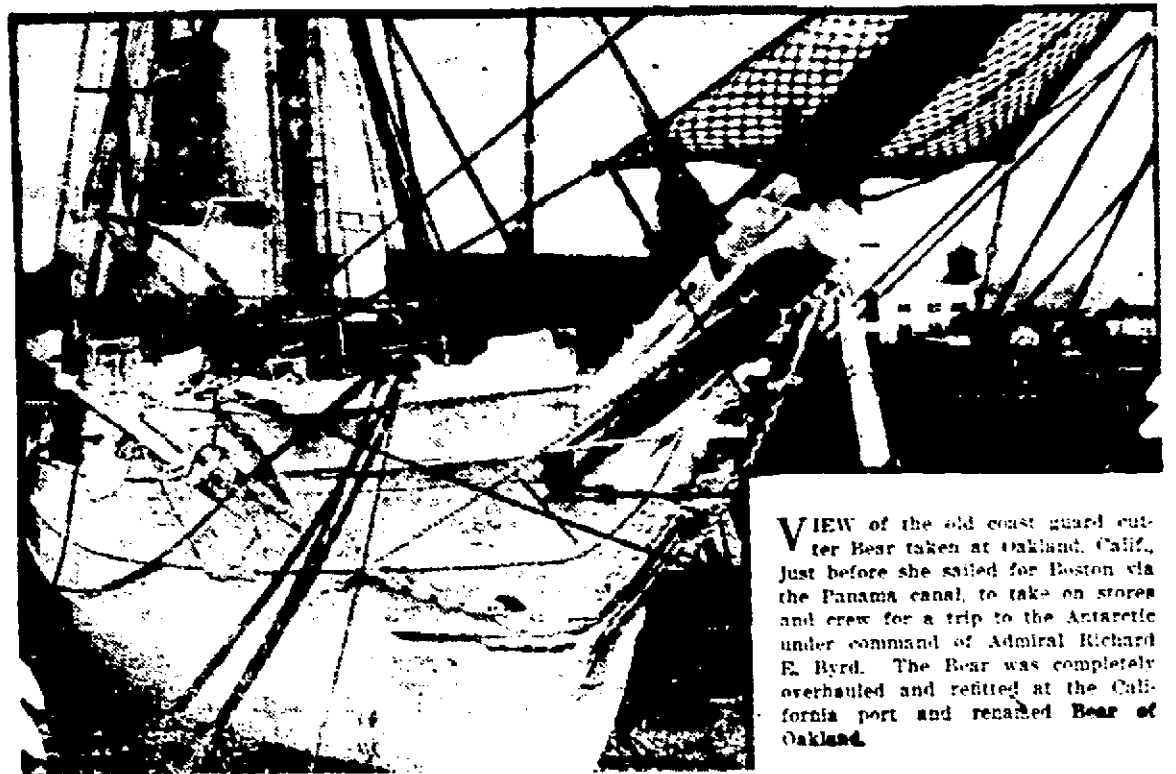

Every one of those children is well and doing his or her part in the world's work. They were poor, but never made any apologies if a friend dropped in at meal time; he was as welcome as if they were serving a feast, which it was, to every guest.

How simple we could make our meals if we followed the single diet: what a saving on the housewife and wear and tear on our stomachs. But of course we hear some one say, I cannot eat strawberries and it doesn't run in our family to like cabbage? Well, pick out the food you do like; there should be many, and give a day to the enjoyment of each, or even a meal of one food now and then.

Financial And Commercial

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—The stock market showed signs of fatigue today, after three weeks of almost steady advance, and bullish efforts concentrated in the copper group, failed to attract a following.

The list turned conspicuously weak in the early afternoon, after the red metal group had been boosted substantially around midday. The list had started to decline at the opening, but soon stiffened. Wall Street was not much disturbed over the evident weariness of the market, however, and traders had been inclined to look for a "corrective reaction."

American Telephone, having been up more than a point, showed a loss of a point by early afternoon. Others on 1 to 2 included Consolidated Gas, Public Service of N. J., American Can, Allied Chemical, Case, Woolworth, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, American Tobacco B. T. Steel Common, Bethlehem Common, Standard of N. J., and others.

U. S. Steel Preferred dropped 3. Halls, utilities and steels were conspicuously heavy. Among copper and other non-ferrous metals which got up 1 to 2 points in the midday bulge were Kennecott, Howe Sound, Federal Mining, International Silver and St. Joseph Lead, while Phelps Dodge, Anaconda, American Smelting and several others were up fractionally for a time.

Trading was quiet during the morning, but quickened on the afternoon sag. A number of traders had accepted the action of the market in the last hour yesterday as indicating that a setback was in the offing, as that flurry of selling represented the first time that trading had expanded on a decline since the major upward movement got under way some three weeks ago. In point of percentage gain, the July upswing had been the sharpest of any advance in any similar period of time since the major downward cycle started nearly three years ago, and a number of traders had been surprised that a temporary setback had not come sooner.

The attempt to move the copper was evidently predicted on the somewhat better feeling reported in the industry, and rumor that an attempt to mark up the domestic price from the current level of 5 1/2 cents a pound to about 7 cents might be made. An unfavorable factor, however, remains in the huge stocks of metal above ground, which are estimated at more than a year's supply.

On the whole, business news of the day was not particularly revealing. Some observers thought that the rally in shares could easily be resumed should more tangible indications of seasonal improvement appear.

Lovely Still By Airplane.

Schenectady, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP).—Federal officers revealed today how soaring above a thickly wooded track in an airplane, they located a large still yesterday for which they had conducted an unsuccessful ground search for weeks. The agents, landing, motored to the spot under cover of darkness and seized equipment they valued at $10,000. The operators, warned either by the airplane circling over their plant or the approach of the party at night, escaped.

BACK PORCH OBSERVATIONS AND WEST HURLEY MUSINGS

West Hurley, Aug. 2.—This town now enjoys the distinction of a street intersecting. By the continuance of Cedar avenue across Wall street and through to Cedar street lot, we now have our first four corners. Speculation is rife as to whether or not a blinker light should be installed or if turns should be prohibited.

Our young generation, Bobby and Elaine Versteeg, Dolores Crum and Evelyn Sax, said, "ah—" and lost thereby their tonsils. Considering how attached these folks were to their tonsils it was very touching to note the cutting method used in separating them therefrom. There has been a steady demand for ice cream while the market for custards and junket remains firm. Evelyn Sax now takes in a high octave. New families are locating here. Among the new houses nearing completion are the one on Alder Road being erected by Mr. Smith of New York, the one into which Millard Rowe is now moving and which was erected all by his own labor, and a brand new one which Mr. Sax is erecting over in Cedar lot.

Have you ever heard the story of the two holes in the ground? No? Well, well. One was recently completed for Clifford McDonald and another being drilled for Ward Rowe, both on John street. Miss Cary beams quite some these days for she knows full well that the north side of her place will be properly watered by Mr. Rowe and the south side by Mr. McDonald while the east and the west will have to depend on the usual method. You see she is located between them.

Mr. and Mrs. Winchell's daughter, Beverly Anna, measures now eight days. This reporter inquired of the proud father, "Can she yet sing, 'Rock of Ages'?" to which he made reply, "No but I sang, 'Rock away Baby,' nights."

Much has been said in these columns of the recently newly elected, county commander of the American Legion, Robert Browning. Believe it or not Mr. Browning is a resident of West Hurley.

Dr. J. M. Versteeg will preach the sermon at the West Hurley M. E. Church, Sunday, August 7, at 10:30 a. m. Dr. Versteeg is resting after a rigorous year of sermoning, it being his trade. Makes one think of the tug boat captain who spent his days off riding on a ferry boat.

The effects of the July drought is very noticeable hereabouts. It is indeed startling each evening to watch the fish, turtles and frogs stand on their heads in the assorted mud puddles that once went to make up the pond called Sax's Pond. These animals are forced to do this in order to get a drink. The frogs are slowly croaking. The tomato plants are bearing a fine crop of green olives. The lawns have taken unto themselves a permanent wave and a henna rinse. Mr. Fischer is forced to tie up each cauliflower to keep them from freckling.

LAWN PARTY AND BAZAAR FOR WILLOW M. E. CHURCH.

Willow, N. Y., Aug. 2.—A lawn party and bazaar for the benefit of the Willow Methodist Church will be held on Friday, August 5, from 3 to 9 p. m., at the residence of Charles T. McKenzie, one-half mile from Willow, on a new state road leading to Mr. Tremper. The affair is under the auspices of the church members, headed by Mrs. Charles T. McKenzie and Mrs. Walter Jessup. Fancy articles, canned goods, vegetables and flowers will be sold at the booths erected on the grounds. Refreshments will include frankfurters, hamburgers, coffee, rolls, ice cream, cake and soft drinks. A professional fortune teller will be engaged, and the program will feature music and singing, and such outdoor games as croquet, quoits and fish pond.

Chairmen of booths are Mrs. Walter Jessup, fancy goods; Mrs. William P. Riley, canned goods and vegetables; Miss Helen Tait, flowers; Miss Ethel Wilber, ice cream and soft drinks; Mrs. Ray Ford and Mrs. Eugene Hagemeyer, fish pond; E. Frank Tobey and Douglas MacLean, frankfurters, hamburgers, coffee and rolls; Mrs. Elmer Wilber, cake.

The admission fee is small and all are invited to attend. If it rains, the party will be held the next day.

Tobacco Land of Flowers

Tobacco territory, Canada, is a land of flowers. Hundreds of types of flowers, plants and shrubs grow wild on every hill and valley. Nature responds generously where flowers are cultivated and one of the lasting impressions left with the visitor is the variety and beauty of the flowers which decorate the homes and beautify the grounds of Dawson, the capitalist.

Schryvers Defeat Forsts 3-2, Putting Caseys in the Lead

"Big Gene" Rider, catcher, and Ed Wilson, star pitcher, who is almost as big as his teammate, were the big guns before another large assemblage at the Athletic Field Monday evening. Rider poled a double and one of the longest triples ever hit in the City League to give the Lumbermen a 3-2 victory over the Forsts. Riders and pull them down a peg and let the Knights of Columbus take undisputed possession of first place in the league race.

Rider's hits drove in two runs and he subsequently scored the winning run after hitting his triple to have a hand in all the run-making of the Lumbermen. His hits broke up a pitchers' battle which was being staged by Willard Thomas and Wilson.

Wilson had an edge on Thomas and really deserved a shutout as the two runs scored on him developed from two errors. He kept three hits well scattered, no two coming in the same inning, and fanned eight of the Butchers.

Though Thomas set 10 of the Lumbermen down by way of the strikeout route and yielded only six hits, he made the bad mistake of throwing long-distance hits at Rider, while there was a man on base. Thomas got one of the hits made off Wilson, a triple to center field.

After the Lumbermen took the lead in the sixth the Butchers made a last minute rally, when Voelker, pinch-hitting for Tierney, slapped a single through the infield. But Ted Fraleigh, playing left field for the Lumbermen, quelled the uprising by spearing with his gloved hand a fly ball hit by Davitt. He made the catch after sprinting some distance.

The Butchers got away to a good start in the first inning by scoring twice. Davitt reached first base on an error by Slover and Merritt was hit by a pitched ball. Glaser advanced each runner a base with a sacrifice and Tiano was walked to fill the bases. Jack Robins hit one to Peterson at short and he tossed to Myers, who dropped the ball, allowing two runs to cross the plate. It would have made the third out if Myers had held the ball. Wilson proved a puzzle to the Butchers after this inning.

The Lumbermen retaliated in their half of the first by registering one. Fraleigh and Rider manufactured the run. Fraleigh singled and Rider fashioned his double at this time. An error by Glaser, coming after two outs, paved the way for the Lumbermen's winning rally in the sixth. Fraleigh reached first on the error. Glaser carried home the tying run. Rider sent Rider home with an infield single.

Tagging Major League Bases

Credit for the year's greatest baseball comeback seems to belong almost without question to Phil Rhem, erstwhile play-boy of the St. Louis Cardinals and now a consistent winner for Burt Shotton's flagging Phillies.

The right hander whose disregard of training rules and ineffective pitching finally cost him his place in the fading Cardinal organization, has rolled up a string of eight victories against only two defeats since he joined the Phillies early in the campaign. For the Cardinals he had won four games and lost two.

Rhem's pitching was responsible in no small measure for the Phillies' third straight victory over the league leading Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday, 18-5. It was significant that they blamed the Pirates until his teammates had piled up a 9-0 lead for him. After that Rhem eased up. The Phillies flogged four Pirate hurriers for 33 hits to pile up their one-sided triumph, their tenth in 14 games with the league leaders this season.

Tex Carleton pitched Cardinals to a 4-2 victory over the Boston Braves in the only other game on the National League program. Carleton allowed only seven hits and had sensational support from his teammates, especially Jimmy Reese, who handled 12 chances without a bobbie at second base.

The New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics were the day's winners in the abbreviated American League program.

The Yankees tripped Detroit, 6-3, as Danny MacFayden kept 11 Tiger hits well scattered. Babe Ruth's sensational hitting streak came to an end as Whitehill and Wyatt walked him four times after he had been called out on strikes in the first inning.

Rube Walberg had a slight edge on Wes Ferrell as the Athletics nosed out the Cleveland Indians, 1-0. Ferrell allowed only two hits until the ninth when singles by Cochrane, Fox and McNair scored the only run of the battle. Walberg was reached for only four hits. It was the A's second 1-0 victory over the Indians in as many days.

SPORT SLANTS

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Two of the most improved athletes turned up for the American Olympic track and field forces this year are John Anderson, 215-pound discus topper, and Jim Bausch, decathlon champion.

Anderson's college career at Cornell university was marked by only one intercollegiate championship, the indoor shotput. He pushed but never succeeded in beating the late Eric Krenz, Stanford's great discus thrower, until the final Olympic tryouts of 1928, but he was not then able to keep pace with the Olympic double champion, Bud Houser of Southern California.

This spring Anderson went back to Cornell to get his master's degree, with a financial career in mind but a hunch, meanwhile, that he could do something with the discus again. He celebrated his return to competition by getting better than 160 feet for the first time in his life, winning the eastern tryouts with over 163 feet and then cracking the listed world's record in the final tests at Palo Alto with a mark of 165.54 feet.

He outclassed Big Paul Jessup, the former national champion who has a record of more than 169 feet, in the final trials.

Bausch must do it. Bausch was famous chiefly for his performances as a football fullback at the University of Kansas before moving up to the top of the ranks in all-around competition. A year ago he was obliged to drop out of the national decathlon after completing nine of the ten events. He improved so rapidly this spring that he scored more than 8,100 points in the final tryouts at Chicago, bettering the listed world's record set by the Finn, Paavo Yrjola, in the 1928 Olympics.

This mark is still well short of the unofficial world's record of 8,255 points, credited to Aklis Jarvinen of Finland but stamps Bausch as a real factor in the Olympic competition. His teammates, Clyde Coffman and Wilson Charles, the Indian star, are not likely to give the Finns much of a brush over the entire decathlon test unless they show substantial improvement.

"Greek" Hero.

Aklis Jarvinen is one of the most colorful of the Finnish stars. His father, Wefner Jarvinen, won the gold medal for the discus (Greek style) at the Athens Olympics in 1906 and forthwith named his son, born that year, in honor of the celebrated warrior of old Greece.

Tall and slender, "AKI" has won Finnish sprint championships as well as all-around honors. He has a mark of 10.8 seconds for 100 meters and 21.9 for 200 meters.

Woodstock Golfers Defeat Palenville

With 14 pairs from each team competing golfers of the Woodstock Country Club and the Rip Van Winkle Golf and Country Club, Palenville, enjoyed an inter-club match Sunday afternoon at the Woodstock links with the home club winning by the Nassau scoring system 27-11 points. The Woodstockians won 10 of the 14 matches played.

The thrill of the afternoon came at the play of the 18th hole by the two number one teams, Warren Townley, the Woodstock pro, and David Reasner against T. Danaher, the Palenville pro, and G. T. Kaufman. The Woodstock team was one point down when Townley drove to the edge of the green. Reasner's drive landed in the sand trap at right of the green. The Palenville pro sliced his drive into some bad rough and Kaufman took two to get on the green. Danaher overdrove the green on his recovery shot while Reasner thrilled the gallery with his shot from the sand trap, the ball landing about a foot from the pin. The two Woodstockers were down in three each, giving them two points and the match.

Officials said paid attendance for the two days of sparkling competition in the stadium approximated 110,000 making it certain the tenth Olympic games will pass the previous record turnout of 130,282 paid for the entire eight days of track and field sports at Amsterdam.

Tolan and Metcalfe were the class of the field yesterday, although they were not far in front of Jonath of Simpson, the third and fourth men. Joubert of South Africa, fifth, and Yoshiko, the little Japanese, trailed by about two and four yards, respectively.

U. S. Leads in Points
The 1-2-4 finish of the American sprint trio added 18 points to the team score and helped boost the two day total for the United States to 58 points, enough to point the way to certain defense of the team title. Ireland is nearest, with 29 points, and Finland third with 16. Germany, Canada and Poland have 10 each and Great Britain, which finished third four years ago to the U. S. A., and Finland, only three points in six events.

The strongest trio the United States has yet sent into the 2,000 meter steeplechase, led by Joe McCluskey of Fordham, all qualified for the finals as a result of two record-breaking trials.

Tom Everson of England lowered the Olympic mark to 9:19.8 in the first trial, with Walter Pritchard, United States, at his heels. The Finnish favorite, Voimari Iso-Hollo then chopped the record to 9:14.4 in the second heat, beating McCluskey by a narrow margin, with Glen Dawson, United States, third. The final is scheduled Saturday.

Yesterday's STARS

Rube Walberg, Athletics—Blanked Indians with four hits.

Tolan Wins Olympic 100-Meter Title for The United States

Los Angeles, Aug. 2 (AP).—On the crest of a record-breaking wave paralleled in world athletic competition, America moved swiftly today into a commanding position in the Olympic track and field championships, as a result of the most amazing victory for the nation's sprinters in eight years.

The first brilliant chapter of the United States come-back in the realm of human speed was completed yesterday when two black thunderbolts blazed down the Olympic clasperpath. They were so close together at the finish that only the motion pictures finally could establish that Eddie Tolan of Detroit beat Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette by two inches in the world record equalling time of 10.3 seconds, for the Olympic 100-meter championship.

Not since Jackson Scholz shaded Charley Paddock in the Olympic 200-meter final of 1924, had there been so dazzlingly close a sprint finish in these international games. Not since then, either, has America known what it meant to acclaim an Olympic dash winner and a crowd of 60,000 in the Mammoth Olympic Stadium, yesterday, gave the two negro boys a remarkable ovation.

Ready to Run Today

Without a single day of rest, Tolan and Metcalfe, along with their two closest rivals, Arthur Jonath of Germany and George Simpson, third American sprinter, were primed to renew the speed battle today in the first two rounds of 200-meter trials. Metcalfe, because of his tremendous finishing powers, has been established the favorite to turn the tables on Tolan but the experts at any rate, now foresee the first U. S. dash sweep since Paddock and Woodring combined to take the honors in 1920.

The continuation of the speed whirl shared the third day's track program interest with the 800-meter final, in which the new British champion, Long Tom Hampson, faced the challenge of three Americans, Eddie Genung, Charles Hornbostel and Ned Turner, among others.

O'Callaghan Wins Again

Meanwhile this dazzling Olympic show featured the crowning of two sturdy Irish champions, Burly Patrick O'Callaghan in the hammer throw for the second straight Olympic gold, and Slim Robert Morton Tisdall in the 400-meter hurdles; a fresh deluge of records, making it certain the Olympic book of standards will be revised from top to bottom, and definite assurance that all attendance marks for Olympic track and field sports will be wiped out completely.

Campers' Own Day Was Big Success

Preumaker, Aug. 2—Today was a big day for the boys at Camp Preumaker, the Y. M. C. A. camp for boys, held all of the important camp duties and conducted the day's program. It need hardly be said that most of the camp duties were assigned to the regular cabin leaders and members. Three leaders were late to setting-up exercises the morning, were forced to go through the mill, the usual punishment for such an offense, in the amusement of the rest of the camp.

The camp was well conducted all day, the boys had been elected in advance for the various positions and been trained for their work. The boys themselves aroused a great deal of interest. Two boys had been elected for each position and campaign speeches prior to the election. The successful candidates were: Camp director, Donald McManis; program director, Robert W. Van Kenburgh; athletic director, John Murphy; officer of the day, Andrew Murphy; mess officer, Donald McManis. The above officers were elected by the entire camp, while a cabin group also elected one of number to act as cabin leader for a day.

Red Marks, one of the boy campers, was appointed by "Camp Director" McCausland as the camp captain for the day and conducted a daily morning chapel service in competent manner.

Two outstanding events planned for the day by the Camp Council were a ball game with Camp Wahnkonda and a supper hike by cabin groups. The ball game was a thriller, the score being 7 to 6 in favor of the "Y" camp. The Wahnkonda team batted last, and in the last inning, with the bases full, two out, three balls and two strikes on a batter, John Murphy, "Y" camp pitcher, forced Friedman, diminutive Wahnkonda second baseman, to swing and miss—the third strike, retiring the side. A feature of the game was the pitching of Murphy, who struck out 14 batters. Rowland's timely hitting and Schwarz's play at shortstop also featured the game.

So popular was the outdoor supper night like held last week that the boys decided to hold another regular. The expeditions again were cabin groups. The tired and happy boys did not return to recount their adventures until after dark, however, before retiring, everyone agreed that Camper's Own Day had been a great success.

Joe Jacobs Seeking To Be Reinstated

Joe Jacobs, who was suspended by the State Athletic Commission following Max Schmeling's bout with Al Sharkey, said yesterday that he intended to appear before the commission this afternoon to seek reinstatement.

Jacobs wants to be reinstated as a first move in a proposal for a title next month between Schmeling and Mickey Walker. Joe said a contest is sought by Madison Square Garden for the Long Island City Bowl on September 22. Schmeling is scheduled to sail for Europe for America, August 18.

"Duckie Wuckie" Medwick, Houston outfielder, being groomed to make St. Louis fans forget the slugging Chick Haley, is shown manufacturing his pet bat. It's his favorite occupation next to driving Texas League hurriers to the showers.

Dawe and Two Other New Boxers on Card For Friday Night

Three new boxers will be introduced to the fans at the American Legion stadium, Broadway and West O'Reilly street, Friday night when the second card of scraps go on for the benefit fund of the ex-soldiers association.

One of the boys to make his debut is Chester Dawe, "the shine 'em up kid" as Matchmaker "Doc" Studer has him booked, who will trade leather with Battling Lurie, "the downtown slasher". Dawe is expected to put up a battle on a par with or even surpassing the one that Lurie fought with Joe Benjamin of Sangretries not so long ago.

Dawe, a shoe-shiner by profession, has been in training for about a week with Tony Rodriguez, professional featherweight, and is said to have a lethal wallop in his right hand. In fact, the Spanish flash, because of a punch received from Dawe in training cannot go through with a bout at Coney Island this Friday. The blow opened a cut on Rodriguez's left shoulder that he received in an accident at Shandaken more than a month ago. Chester also punched several other sparsmates proper in training.

Lurie has been quoted as saying that he will take Dawe over the hurdles in easy fashion and win by a walk.

The other newcomers on Friday's fight bill are Mickey Raymond, brother of the famous Johnny Raymond of East Kingston, who is also slated to box and Frankie Kouhout, formerly of the U. S. aviation squadron at Mitchell Field, L. I.

Featuring the card is the heavyweight match between Jack Sullivan of Marlborough and Willie Barrow of Poughkeepsie. Plenty of slugging is expected in this encounter, the third between the two hard-punching big boys.

The scheduled route of the program is 34 rounds, but the ability of several scrappers as hard punchers indicates that the festive carnival will be shortened by several knock-outs.

Time of the first bout, the Lurie-Dawe affair, is 8:30, and as no one will want to miss this tilt the arena probably will be filled early.

Two Bouts for Leonard

Benny Leonard, retired lightweight champion, fighting as a midweight, has announced signing contracts to meet Paule Walker in a 10 rounder at Elmhurst Field, August 10, and Mike Sarsia in a return bout Long Beach Stadium on August 19. Benny also accepted terms for a welterweight championship match with Jackie Fields, the titleholder, to be held in Madison Square Garden Bowl on September 5 or 12.

GERMAN PRISONER FLEES FRENCH CAMP

Soldier Says He Was Held Captive Since 1916.

Berlin—An exchange of notes between Germany and France may follow the return home of a German soldier believed to have been killed in the battle of the Somme 16 years ago.

Georg Daubmann, whose name is engraved on a monument in honor of the war dead of the village of Endingen, returned home after an adventurous escape from a French prison camp in Africa. He told German government officials who cross-examined him, he had been held there since 1916. A disquisition, now begun, may result in a diplomatic controversy between Berlin and Paris.

A short time ago the French government informed the reich all prisoners of war had been discharged. This definitely put an end to all hopes on the part of many Germans that their relatives, reported to have been killed or missing in France, were still alive and being held in African prison camps.

Hope Aroused

Daubmann's return home now has aroused these hopes anew. Government officials have been swamped with innumerable letters by relatives of soldiers killed in the war, asking the government to make new, more thorough inquiries.

Daubmann's return, on the other hand, has become the center of varied comment by newspapers. Those favoring Franco-German reconciliation doubt his story. Nationalistic organs sharply demand an inquiry, railing against France. The fact that officials of the reich have taken up the matter has given the case considerable prominence.

Daubmann's return was turned into a monster nationalistic demonstration. Over 2,000 villagers awaited the soldier's arrival at the railway station. Brass bands and wild cheering greeted him when he stepped from the train.

Parents Ill

His aged mother fainted. His father sank to his knees as he grasped his son's hand. Daubmann himself was so weak that he had to be carried home. All festivities planned in honor of him had to be called off.

The soldier's story of his capture and final escape from Africa has been termed "weird and fantastic" by numerous newspapers. This is what he recounted:

"I was taken prisoner by the French on the 21st of October, 1916, after being severely wounded. After recovering from my wounds I was transferred to a prison camp.

"There I made an attempt to escape. I killed a guard who tried to block my way. I thereupon was sentenced to 20 years' hard labor in the French colonies.

"In Africa I again tried to escape. I was caught and put in chains. Following a term of solitary confinement I was put to work building roads. Then I was transferred to the prison tailor shop for good behavior. There I finally was able to make my escape."

Zoo Pigs Are Popular With Detroit Children

Detroit—Pigs are not "just pigs" at the Detroit zoological park this year. Far from it. Pigs are a display in the American farm exhibit, the very latest thing in zoology. And, according to Superintendent H. Morris, the little porkers are among the most popular members of the zoo younger set.

Morris said the pigs are so popular he plans to get more when they grow up. "People like little pigs better—to look at," he said.

$10,000,000 in U. S. Paper Money Wears Out Daily

St. Louis—United States currency is wearing out at the rate of $10,000,000 a day, according to W. O. Woods, treasurer of the United States, in an address here. Dollar bills circulate most briskly, Wood said. They wear out in about eight months, while $5 bills last 18 months and higher numbers proportionately longer.

Iraq, 150 Holidays, Is Clerks' Paradise

Besrah, Iraq—Iraq is without doubt the bank clerk's paradise. It has more holidays than any country in the world, a medley of Christian, Mohammedan, and Jewish celebrations which absorb more than one-third of each year.

Most of the subordinate bank staffs are Jews, without whom the work could not be carried on. They have their Saturdays off, and in addition there are 25 other days on which they do not work.

There are 12 to 15 days allocated to the official Moslem festivals and the banks close on these as well. In addition, there are 32 Christian Sundays, and the banks also close on Christmas day, the day following, New Year, Good Friday, and Easter Monday.

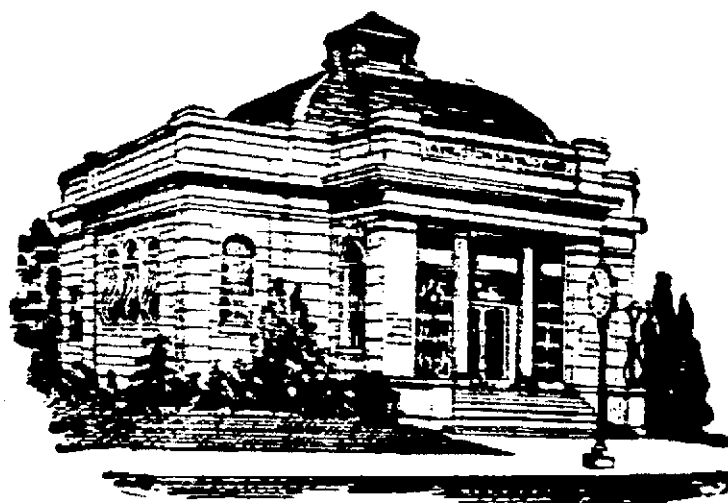

Altogether the total bank holidays of Iraq number around 150. When they do open the hours are 7:30 a. m. to 12 noon, except for a period during the winter, when they open a little longer. Moreover, one of the three banks with many branches in the East pays its British staff an extra allowance for working in Iraq.

Former Chancellor Of Austria Dead

Vienna, Aug. 2 (AP).—Monsignor Ignaz Seipel, former chancellor of Austria, died today at a sanatorium near here. He was 56 years old.

Monsignor Seipel, who became chancellor in May, 1922, had been ill for several months with lung trouble aggravated by a bullet wound received in an attempt to assassinate him in 1924.

A leader of the Christian Social Party in the republic which was born of the war, he was the recognized head of the Fascist movement in the country but he never allowed these activities to interfere with his duties as a Catholic priest.

News of Today In Kingston

Sections of the Bonus Army are wandering through the town, looking for somebody to talk to and some place to share. They have plenty on their minds and they must add ideas themselves every so often. Of course, there're not for President Hoover.

The gas stations are visited and these boys ask for water. They want to share their beads.

"Do you need a mirror?" asked a good-hearted station tender.

"No," the veteran replied, "just water."

They go on to stress the point that there were only a few Reds among the veterans at Washington. "We boosted most of them out," one said. "We weren't there as enemies of the government, but were looking for what was ours," he said with an air of confidence.

"Thanks again bud for the water," he added and went on his way.

Down the street he tramped along, singing here and there, whistling softly to himself. He didn't say where he was going but that figure didn't look as though it would go far.

Body of Former King MANUEL BROUGHT HOME

London, Aug. 2 (AP).—The body of former King Manuel of Portugal, who died in exile in England July 2, was brought home here today aboard the British cruiser Concord for burial.

Great crowds stood silently in the streets and squares near the docks and watched the coffin borne by British blackhackers from the ship to the quay, where it was met by Portuguese officials.

The body was in the royal flag of the House of Braganza and at half staff by the side of the banner of the republic which ousted Manuel 22 years ago.

The Concord, escorted by two Portuguese warships, boomed a 21-gun salute and the guns of the land fort answered.

Through silent crowds the coffin was drawn on a gun carriage to the Church of St. Vincent, passing on the way to the very spot where Manuel's father and brother were slain by a bomb which made him king in the days before the republic.

Fashions by Eleanor Gunn

Necklines and Sleeves
Betsey U's

BEETROOT-AND-WHITE VOILE

Copyright, 1932, by Fairchild.

New York—Ladies look to your sleeveless. It is one of the trends of your costume. The neck-line is to be a simple, straight line, not a wide, flared, or a deep, V-neck. It is to be a simple, straight line, not a wide, flared, or a deep, V-neck. It is to be a simple, straight line, not a wide, flared, or a deep, V-neck.

Sleeves are also simple. When they are simple, they are better. The simple sleeve is better than the wide, flared, or the deep, V-neck. It is to be a simple, straight line, not a wide, flared, or a deep, V-neck.

While showing the usual simplicity of fashion to come, women are still basking in the comfort and charm of such simple and attractive clothes as the gods and goddesses of the fashion have provided for the moment. At Southampton, Newport, wherever you may go, you will find evidence of much delight in the cotton gown. Dinner before or after six, there are cotton gowns and sherry, and the night is for the night.

It is unquestionably a white summer, but with dashes of red and much blue to relieve it. Beetroot-red with white has a tremendous vogue and serves to prepare us for a rich and varied assortment of reds for autumn. All prints worthy of mention are either in or with white.

Gloves for Tennis Arrive
Via Wimbledon

London—Because Wimbledon tennis players often suffered from blisters on their hands, a special glove for tennis was introduced here and made its first appearance during the recent championships. This was beige. But now a Pincodilly sneaked with a fine suede palm and dairy store is rushing through an aisle back, and fastened at the back order for the gloves in yellow and with two buttons, or else had elastic white—the appropriate tennis color in the wrist. It is a style previously promoted for golfers. The first woman tennis player to sponsor it—Miss M. Reesley, England—wore it in made its first appearance during the recent championships. ## Twin Fabrics Dot the Beach

Leaf-printed lines twin beach styles.

Beach costumes are usually in gay, over bathing suits identical in fabric and stripes this season. Jackets, too. Speaking generally, beach match skirts, and long slacks slip wear. If not wool, is usually cotton.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

There has been an increase in the vogue for mesh stockings, particularly in smaller patterns, for all occasions, including evening. But the proportion seen is still small compared to plain silk stockings—about one among ten.

Gloves were the most interesting of all the accessory fashions promoted during the great week that marks the height of the Paris season. They showed both variety and novelty.

Popular shades for women's shoes are wine and whiskey. White is a favorite now, but the wine colors are growing in popularity and by fall they should be in big demand.

Evening jewelry is seventy-five per cent precious or imitation of precious stones, notably pearls and diamonds. Pendant earrings have increased in vogue.

SERVICES RESUMED AT ESOP'S REFORMED CHURCH.

The services of the Peoples Reformed Church, 1121 Park, which were discontinued during the pastor's vacation, will be resumed on Sunday, August 7. The morning service will be held at 11 o'clock in the Brick Church, and the sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. Louis H. Holden of New Brunswick, New Jersey. Dr. Holden is Professor of English Bible in the Reformed Church Theological Seminary at New Brunswick and is an able, scholarly, and interesting speaker. His message will undoubtedly be one of interest and value to all who hear him.

The evening service will be held in the Union Center Church at 8 o'clock, and the sermon will be delivered by the pastor, Ralph H. Beaumont. The subject will be "The Freedom of the Christian." and will be a discussion of the reasons why the vital Christian faith must result in the development of the life of voluntary righteousness. The two Sunday schools will also resume their sessions. The school at Union Park holds its sessions at 10 o'clock, with Harold V. Story as superintendent, and the school at Union Center meets at the same hour under the supervision of Alfred Baker. All both adults and children are cordially invited to attend any and all of the services of both the church and Sunday schools.

Life

By FANNIE HURST

BY ONE of those ironies in which the largest city in the world seems to take cruel, almost delicious delight, night work on a new subway in the making was taking place directly in front of one of the metropolis' most glittering theaters.

That meant that the street itself was converted into a 30-foot canyon fenced off with improvised wooden railings, while the limousines and vehicles which drove up nightly around performance time had to disgorge their furred and perfumed, high-haired and white-gloved occupants on a little wooden runway which carried them over the subway abyss.

Sometimes in their furs and perfumes, their capes and high hats, the theater goers stopped to peer down into the curious, the grotesque, the torch-lighted bowels of the earth, where men swung from cranes, or drilled into rock with rapping noises that tore the ears, or sluiced great streams of clayey water over granite-colored earth so that it oozed into black, viscous mud and flowed off to reveal more rock than in its turn had to be blasted.

It was a hideous, fantastic spectacle. Somewhat like the drawings of Dore to illustrate Dante's Inferno. The men's faces, as they labored, became grimed in black so that their teeth, bared with effort, sprang out whitely. Even in the biting winter cold, chests were bare because of the pull and strain. Blowtorches tore out into the night. It was indeed a scene to invite the squeals of the fur-wrapped women and the interested contemplation of the men.

A scene that made it all the pleasanter, however, to continue along the runway and into the warm, brilliantly lit foyer of the theater and then on into the velvet auditorium and the sound of an orchestra weaving softly and bringing illusion and surcease from such grim reality as the men outside, forging into rock that lined the innards of the earth and blasting nature out of place that men might ride in subways the faster, the better, the quicker, to their destinations of gain and greed.

The theater was surcease, all right, after one look down into the flickering chamber of horrors. The men themselves, digging that subway, minded at first, it made them growl and grumble to have these warm, fed people stand and laugh and comment. It made ugly lines come out in their faces, and ugly words under their breath. But after a while they became accustomed to the runway and its traffic. Most of the time they did not look up at all.

There was one, though, a fellow named Olaf Wentzel, who did. They fascinated him, those furred and perfumed people on the runway. They fascinated him in a rather terrible way. The women filled him with an anger that was like warm water, choking him, in his throat. The men made his hands curl inward with desire to throttle.

It fascinated him to inflict this pain upon himself, and yet it terrorized him. Life was that was. To resent, to hate, to suffer, got you nowhere. It was said that the Reds in Russia were worse off than before the revolution. There was no combating the social system, so he had been told over and over again. It made it difficult to belong to the union if you voiced obstreperous views. The union was to protect men from unfair advantage, but not to instill rebellion.

No, it got you nowhere. If you voiced your hatred under your breath to the other men, they answered in kind under their breath, but it got you nowhere. And yet, for the life of him, Olaf could not help hating. Those women with furs that he wanted for his Fania and his children.

Those men with position and wealth and power that he wanted for himself. The subway canyon became a hell to Olaf.

The strains of the music that sometimes crept out between blasts and blow torches and grindings and drillings were slow poison in his veins. Great, slow, heroically built fellow that he was, his moroseness came to learn for him the name "Glum."

Olaf was glum. With the sense of injustice that weighted down his heart as he labored through the icy nights to make possible a masterpiece of subway construction into which his name would never be writ, Olaf was glum with hate, with resentment, with a smoldering ache that would not leave him.

Life became a burden almost too heavy for him to drag. He slept away his days in the tenement he called home and he slaved away his nights in the hell called subway and the light of any kind of desire went out of his eyes. Only there were six months to feed at home, and night-work paid a third again as much, and so one went ahead, sullen and dogged with the knowledge that come what might, go what might, those five children and Fania had to be fed.

His wife pined and worried under his growing gloom. His children, whom he loved, came to avoid him more and more.

Even on the street where he stood

Olaf came after a time to be known as "Glum."

The man with a weight at his heart.

"Boshovik" some one said of him once, but Olaf turned and swore and hit out at the man who said it. Olaf was not boshovik nor anything else. He was just miserable. Weighted down with a sense that the social system which made him back now, all right in an eye-rolling street canyon with men and women set in rough interiors was somehow wrong. Weighted down with the sense that his Fania should have some of the furs and the perfumes of life instead of just the acrid and the drudgery. Olaf wanted his children to grow up into some of the beauties of life. And here they were, the five little ones of them, shut out even from a decent amount of sunlight. Deafened even the toys of childhood. Laquers—little starlings.

He was a bitter man. Bitterness was etched into his face. Into his eyes. Into his heart.

He smiled so seldom that those muscles of his face became taut. He spoke seldom.

One early dawn, when Olaf, dog tired, arrived home, for the routine of breakfast which Fania always had piping hot for him, and then most frequently to throw himself on the bed without even kicking off his shoes, Fania met him as usual at the door with a lamp in her hand.

There was the smell of the coffee and the salt pork which he liked after the night of labor, and as usual the kitchen range warm and glowing to greet him. After the cold dusk and the black icy night of labor, Fania saw to it that these things awaited him. But, alas, Olaf was often too tired even to finish his meal, sometimes flopping down into his arms among the very breakfast dishes and having to be led off to bed like a blind man.

But this morning there was something about Fania's face as she met him that startled even the fatigued, drugged man as he crossed his threshold.

There was something like a light in Fania's face!

There was hope in this face of Fania which had been dead looking and lifeless for all the mornings of that winter.

"Olaf," she said as she met him at the door and leaned weakly and a little pitifully up against him as he entered—"Olaf—don't be mad—I went to the clinic today to make sure—we're going to have a baby—Olaf, I can't help it—I'm glad—"

Through the jaded, numbed man, there flowed such a spurt of emotion at that, such a warm surge of life, that the same light leaped into his eyes that shone so in Fania's.

"My girl," he said and took her in his arms, ashamed at the great surge of energy and life and pride and reser- even of happiness, that shot through him—"we'll have to work for six little months now—God bless them."

Exquisite Designs of Earliest Watch Cases

In the latter part of the Sixteenth and the first of the Seventeenth century, to keep up with extravagances in dress, watch cases were pierced, chased and enriched with colored enamel mounted in rock crystal cut to form crosses, stars, and skulls, and representations of flowers, animals, books, butterflies and the fat oval (the Nuremberg egg). The skull, one of the most popular, was probably an offshoot of the head-chopping fashion of the day.

Most of these vanities came from Blois, France, and were called "tort." while the dealers were known as the "tortmen."

By the time it is evident that watch-making, while originating in Germany, was well acquainted in France, but there seems to be no record of any English watch manufacturers until the end of the Sixteenth century.

Queen Elizabeth, however, was watch conscious, being the owner of a large collection, gifts from courtiers. We have the Puritans to thank for the introduction of the fob, or tiny pocket for carrying a watch—date, about 1625. The story is plausible enough. With their violent antipathy toward the display of any ornament, they originated the custom of concealing the watch in the pocket. By the middle of the century (the Seventeenth) the watch cases were so jeweled and enamelled that an outer case of fish skin, tortoise shell, shagreen, wood, amber or pinchbeck (invention of Christopher Pinchbeck, famous Eighteenth-century horologist), was fashioned to protect the inner.

Temperatures Down Deep

It has long been known that the temperatures in the copper mines south of Lake Superior are influenced by their proximity to or remoteness from that large body of water.

The depth at which the boiling point of water is reached in this vicinity is about 35,000 feet, while south of Berlin, Germany, many miles from the Baltic and the North Sea, the boiling temperature is reached at 22,000 feet, so that at Lake Superior the temperature zone is depressed about 13,000 feet, or, say two and a half miles.

Thick or Thin?

Mrs. R. was studying a picture of Doonee valley, which hung on the wall of a beauty parlor where she was having a shampoo. She asked the young woman who was serving her:

"Have you read 'Lorna Doone'?"

"Well, I'm not just sure. Is it a thick book or a thin book?"

SACAGAWEA

A Shoshoni girl of about fourteen, busy in camp, with the humble duties of an Indian woman, would scarcely seem born to be a leader of white men. Certainly, her thoughts did not run along this line. A stalwart husband, babies playing around her feet, and the daily life that her mother and grandmother before her had led—this, she would have said, was her future.

Suddenly, a war-party of Hidatsa bore down upon the camp. There was little time for defense or flight. Sacagawea found herself on a horse—one of the Shoshoni horses—racing back to the Hidatsa camp between guards. She was a trophy of the raid, just as were the horses and the Shoshoni scraps.

Charbonneau, a French-Canadian voyageur living among the Hidatsa, saw the quiet captive maiden. She seemed strong, she was modest, and pretty as Indian girls go; he bought her to add to his household, a wife and slave combined. What Sacagawea thought, we will never know. Perhaps she was pleased to be chosen by a white man; perhaps she remembered longingly some youth at the Shoshoni camp. She did not say; she quietly assumed her new duties.

Then Lewis and Clark came to the village on their famous expedition and engaged Charbonneau as a guide and interpreter. Sacagawea went along to attend her husband, but by and by the white men noticed that it was the woman who knew the way, and the woman who could speak the many Indian tongues. The cowardly Charbonneau was just another greedy mouth—a worthless braggart, who talked much but did little.

As they ascended the Missouri river, amid adventures with bears and other unpleasant happenings, an accident occurred which perilled the very life of their expedition. Charbonneau was at the helm of a canoe containing papers, instruments, medicines, and almost every article indispensable for the success of our enterprise. A squall came up, and the boat turned partly around. The guide, losing his head, managed to almost overturn the craft, and many of the precious contents were spilled into the river. The leaders were on shore; the men in the boat were busy trying to right her. What could save the valuable cargo? Let the explorer himself answer:

"The Indian woman to whom I ascribe equal fortitude and resolution with any person on board . . . caught and preserved most of the articles which were washed overboard."

This was only one of the dangers encountered on the long trail. There were turbulent rivers, floods, dangerous rocks, wild and fierce animals. Through them all Sacagawea, her tiny baby on her back or in her arms, patiently made her way. The little fellow seemed to take his adventurous entry into life as a matter of course and somehow we are glad that he was along. He was a care, of course, and added another to the burdens which Sacagawea must bear. And yet, there were moments when she could hold him close and love him—beautiful little interludes in the long, perilous journey, when her baby's bright eyes gave her new courage.

The first band of the Shoshoni had been reached. The chief came to welcome his white visitors, and Sacagawea was sent out to meet him as interpreter. No doubt she had wondered if she would know any of his band, and it must have surprised her to see her brother at his head. Lewis wrote afterward, however, that she showed no emotion at the meeting. Why should she? Life was crammed with adventures, dangers, and surprises for her. This was just one more experience to be endured.

Their meeting came about at an hour of great need for the expedition. Horses and supplies were indispensable. Without the good words spoken for them by Sacagawea, they might not have obtained either, but she counseled her brother to help the explorers, and they were enabled to go on across the divide.

On the return journey, the resourceful woman again saved them. Clark's party was lost in the mountain passes of Montana, but she guided them to safety.

When they reached the Shoshoni in Wyoming, she stopped. Here was the end of the trail for her. These were her people, and although she had been a fountain of strength, she felt the need of rest. The Wind River reservation was created at about this time, and she and her son took up their abode within its borders.

Charbonneau went back to the Hidatsa. He was seen, an old man, in 1858, in the Hidatsa country, but his history ceases there.

In 1860, an old woman sat among her people, recalling memories. She was nearly a hundred years old, but she had been strong and strong once, when the great white explorers had trusted themselves to her. She sighed, remembering. Her eyes shut. Ended now were her days on earth. But Sacagawea had gone on another voyage of discovery.

The Women's Exchange in Kingston is one of thousands of similar organizations over the country. The local exchange specializes in home-baked bread, rolls, pies and cakes, as well as in hand-made linens. It also carries a large collection of antiques.

In addition to the sale of homemade articles the exchange conducts a circulating library which shows large popularity. New books are being added continually.

Moving of the shop will be carried on in such a manner that there will be no interruption in service to customers.
